This training includes participation in skills workshops, particularly for pedagogical skills, and practical experience in student guidance and teaching.

2. The teaching assistant works under the supervision of the head of the relevant study programme. This person along with the head of human resources are the point of reference in case of disagreements about workload and/or the employment contract.

II. Conditions, duties and activity rates

1. Teaching assistantships are open to all students enrolled in a PhD programme at the Institute. Recruitment or renewal is precluded in case of a study extension or if the student receives a full scholarship or a scholarship outside the Institute.

2. Taken together, the tasks enumerated in section III of this document must not exceed 15 hours per week over a period of 11 months (44 weeks at 15 hours per week, totaling 660 hours per year). The remaining time should be dedicated to the PhD thesis.

3. Pursuant to article 15 of the Teaching and Research Personnel Regulations (« Règlement du personnel de l’enseignement et de la recherche »), an assistantship is based in principle on a fixed term contract of one year, renewable for a maximum of 4 years (8 semesters). The yearly renewal is decided by the study programme concerned, on the basis of the assistant’s academic record and quality of work.

4. The assistant is expected to be available during the duration of his contract. He must inform the study programme academic manager of vacation dates and seek an authorisation if he wishes to travel during the academic calendar.

5. In case a teaching assistant’s doctoral research requires a stay abroad for longer than a few weeks, the contract can be renewed once the student returns to the Institute. The assistant must inform the head of the relevant study programme in good time to schedule the contract renewal for the following year.
